100 Church leaders plan sit tomorrow

"History of Arts in the Church" will be the theme of an assembly for nearly a dozen LDS bishops and stake presidents and their partners at BYU tomorrow.

Bishops and Stake Presidents' Day is usually in conjunction with General Conference of the Church to give the men opportunity to hold reunions with students.

The assembly, scheduled for 10 a.m. in the Fieldhouse, will begin with early hymns and projection of slides of anamorphic paintings by the pioneer artist C.C.A. Christensen. His grandson, John Christensen, will be a special guest at the assembly.

During the early Utah period, the Provo Choir and Philharmonic Orchestra present selections from Mendelssohn's "The Creation" and Haydn's "The Seasons." Slides of Mormon architecture and 20th Century art will also be shown.

During a special appearance on the program will be Japanese pianist Yoshie Moto, who presented a recital on a Wednesday. Miss Akimoto will be the last movement of Chopin's "No. 1 in E minor."

The program will conclude with the "Wide World of Music," with numbers by the Philharmonic Orchestra and A Cappella and slides showing Expo '70, new art and works of current painters.

Forum reset for Friday

Forum today and tomorrow at 10 a.m. will undergo a shift in order to accommodate Bishops' and Stake Presidents' Day.

There will be no Forum Assembly today. At the 10 a.m. hour today students attend their Friday 10 a.m. classes. An Assembly will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m. to complete the switch of classes. After tomorrow's assembly, 11 a.m. classes will be cancelled to enable students to visit with home town Bishops and Stake Presidents.

Latimer to appeal Calley decision

Man who keeps Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is a Salt Lake City attorney.

Wayne W. Latimer is Calley's defense lawyer.

Although Latimer's client has been tried, he's not through yet.

Salt Lake City lawyer—"the only expert on military law, practicing as a civilian," according to a close associate—said yesterday he plans to appeal the verdict on "90 grounds or so."

According to United Press International, he denounced the original guilty verdict, saying "it's a terrible rap."

He would try to intervene and see if Calley could be released from his

Sessions to begin

General Conference will come to BYU this weekend via a live telecast in both the Varsity Theater and the ELWC Ballroom. Sessions will be telecast at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, April 6. The Priesthood session will be telecast in the Fieldhouse Saturday at 7 p.m.

Lt. Calley sentenced to life; denies wanton intent to kill

FT. BENNING, GA. (UPI)—Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was sentenced to life at hard labor yesterday for the premeditated murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, but the sentence likely will be taken to the nation's highest courts and perhaps the President himself.

The six-officer jury panel which heard the longest courtmartial in U.S. military history had only two choices—life imprisonment or death—and it chose the least harsh of the two.

Under the life sentence, Calley is eligible for parole after 10 years.

Standing at attention before the court president, Col. Clifford H. Ford, the ashen-faced, but unblinking 27-year-old defendant listened as Ford told him:

"First Lt. William L. Calley, it is my duty as president of this court to inform you that the court in closed session and upon secret written ballot, three fourths of the members present at the time the vote was taken concurring, sentences you:

"To be confined at hard labor for the length of your natural life, to be dismissed from the service, to forfeit all pay and allowances."

"I'll do my best sir," Calley said, and snapped a salute.

The young officer, who stood trial for 102 murders at My Lai, tearfully told the panel in his final statement Tuesday that he had never wantonly killed anyone in his life.

He claimed throughout the trial that he was merely following the orders of this commanding officer at My Lai, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, and he said his only crime was valuing the lives of his troops over those of the enemy.

Calley's case now will be to a reviewing officer, who has the power to lessen the sentence, or throw it out altogether. The only thing the reviewer cannot do is increase the penalty.

Still later the case will be checked for judicial error, and then referred to the Military Court of Appeals. It could end in the U.S. Supreme Court, if jurisdiction is transferred from the military, and also could go to President Nixon.

said, in the trial of David Mitchell—another soldier found innocent of the March 16, 1968 My Lai massacre.

Latimer's associate claimed there were "inconsistencies" in the story of witnesses in private and on the stand.

The spokesman said most of the preparatory work for the trial was collected right in Salt Lake City before the longest military trial in history began Nov. 12, 1969.

He added that Latimer has seldom been home—except for a two week Christmas break—since the trial began.

Seventy-year-old Latimer has been a judge on the Utah State Supreme Court and the U.S. Court of Military Appeals,

HUD secretary scheduled for Friday lecture

George Romney, member of President Nixon's Cabinet and former governor of Michigan, will speak at the Executive Lecture Series sponsored by the College of Business at BYU tomorrow.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development will appear at 4:10 p.m. in the J.S. Auditorium. The lecture is open to the public.

After attending the University of Utah and George Washington University, Romney became a tariff specialist in Washington, D.C. He later worked with the Aluminum Company of America as its Washington representative for several years.

Mr. Romney joined Nash-Kelvinator Corporation in 1948 as assistant to the president. In 1953 he was elected executive vice-president, a position he held when Nash-Kelvinator and Hudson Motor Car Company merged in 1954 to form American Motors Corporation. He became chairman and president of American Motors in 1954.

He resigned when he announced his candidacy for governor of Michigan. He served as governor of Michigan from 1962 until his appointment to President Nixon's cabinet.

A member of the LDS Church, Mr. Romney served as president of the Detroit Stake. He received an honorary doctor of laws degree from BYU in 1959 and in 1961 he received the Exemplary Manhood Award from the Associated Men Students at BYU.

BYU feted with dinner

President Ernest L. Wilkinson will present a major paper entitled "A University of Destiny" Friday at a Newcomen Society dinner honoring BYU.

The society, which holds meetings throughout the nation to honor businesses and institutions whose excellence have carved a place in industrial and institutional history, will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the ELWC Ballroom.

Among the guests will be George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

according to his partner.

Since he is one of the country's leading military law attorneys practicing as a civilian, "he is called on military cases quite often," said his associate.

Latimer represented Sgt. Smith in the Green Beret "fiasco" two years ago, he added.

Latimer, a member of the Church, served on the staff of one of the commanding generals in the European Theatre in World War II.

According to UPI Utahans have reacted with strong but mixed criticism to the guilty verdict.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

COMPLEX SITUATION

Editor:

Prof. Nibley's letter on the renunciation of war provides an excellent insight into the current round of debate on campus. I would like to comment a little more fully on the question of renouncing war.

It is probably not too well known that at one time the world did renounce war. The Kellogg-Briand Pact of 1925, officially titled "The Treaty for the Renunciation of War" specified that, "The High Contracting Parties... renounce it (war) as an instrument of national policy..." And also that "...the settlement of all disputes or conflicts... shall never be sought except by pacific means." Unfortunately, the Kellogg-Briand Pact has not prevented World War II nor any of the smaller wars since that time. If formal renunciation of war is not sufficient, then what must be done to end war? (This is assuming, as does Dr. Nibley, that war should be eliminated.) The Book of Mormon, which is frequently cited by both sides of the debate, really provides little help in answering the question as it is directed to find examples of and justification for everything from unilateral disarmament to preemptive attack. Indeed, any scriptural argument generally ends with both sides citing favorite scriptures and no one is convinced of anything except that he is right.

How then does one attempt to end war? Prof. Nibley has shown the problem of ending war by total victory. On the other hand, pacifism leaves oneself at the mercy of any attacker who has decided not to renounce war. It may have worked for the Lamanites who had made a covenant not to fight, but one cannot but wonder if it would have worked for the French during the Nazi invasion. The Jewish experience would tend to discount this.

All this leaves us where we started, namely nowhere. However, this seems to be consistent with the current debate on war which seems to be answering the question as it is directed.

Perhaps the situation is more complex than we are prepared to admit.

Parley W. Newman, Jr.

IN ERROR

Editor:

With all due respect to Brother Nibley's undisputed expertise in the field of archeology, I nevertheless believe his recent comments on the merits of pacifism is in error. To arrive at the conclusion that taking up arms in the defense of liberty is inconsistent with true Christianity, one must first disregard the words of two prophets (see "Can War Be Justified" by Pres. David O. McKay, the Old Testament, a considerable volume of scripture in the Book of Mormon, the messages of the First Presidency concerning our military obligations and the New Testament account of Jesus, who used physical force in driving evil men from the temple. David O. McKay gave his opinion of pacifism as follows: "These credulous, misguided persons claim to be advocates of peace, and accuse those who oppose them as advocates of war. They should remember that all of us should ever keep in mind that there are some eternal principles more precious than peace, dearer than life itself."

Alma 62:12-14 is also instructive in this regard: "We would subject ourselves to the yoke of bondage if we are requited with the justice of God, or if he should command us to do so. But behold he doth not command us that we shall subject ourselves to our enemies... Therefore, let us resist evil, and whatsoever evil we cannot resist with our words, such as rebellions and dissensions, let us resist them with our swords, that we may retain our freedom."

The spot of letters denouncing General Douglas MacArthur's maxim, "In war there is no substitute for victory," brings into question the sincerity of those who claim to be non-war. A true pacifist opposes violence on both sides, not just the American side when we oppose communist aggression.

Alma 43:16-47 says "...ye shall not suffer yourselves to be slain by the hands of your enemies. And again, the Lord has said that: Ye shall defend your families even unto bloodshed." To use Brother Nibley's words, I write this letter not as a protest, but as a timely reminder that we have been instructed that free agency is a divine gift more precious than life.

BE WARNED

Editor:

Recently in the Daily Universe there was word of caution to those unwelcome students approached by anxious salesmen who pressured them to sign for contracts and other obligations. In addition, this year and last I recall warnings from our Stake President, that once they accept and sign a contract (seventy-two hours are allowed to withdraw in Utah State law now), they are bound to that obligation. President Wilkinson also has spoken upon this subject in assemblies.

One morning I answered the phone to hear a pleasant voice of an insurance salesman. I knew of him because of a reputation he had as an athlete from my hometown, although I had never met him. I trusted and confided in him and after a sketch of the policy so designed to pay money into the policy. Later I was told that it couldn't discontinue the policy as I had supposed, but must pay for a complete year. All of this past year I have sought to be released by talking with the company, which is in our local area, and I have corresponded with the company headquarters in Sun, N.J., Galesburg, Texas. Also I've sought legal advice from several different sources, but as yet, to no avail. Please accept this experience for the value it may have for you.

CREATIVE

Editor:

Although writing for a heavily censored newspaper like the Daily Universe must be difficult, at least one reporter has recently been able to vent his creative urges. I'm specifically referring to the article concerning the threatened "radical" takeover at Berkeley.

The writer implies that the April Coalition is composed of communist left-type radicals intent on fermenting revolution. While the April Coalition is backed by the new left, the overwhelming majority of its support comes from students, liberals, blacks, Chicanos, and other mistreated minorities. The four candidates representing the coalition include two attorneys, a graduate student, and a housewife. These type of people can hardly be labeled as "revolutionary radicals."

The platform the coalition is running on is no more "radical" than its candidates. Tax reform, low cost housing, and child care centers are urgently needed in all major cities, for just Berkeley. The proposal to split the police department is not so "startling" either, especially when you consider that BYU operates its own riot-trained security force.

The April Coalition should soundnsiderative in some areas. The central theme of their campaign is community control. The coalition includes many middle-class people as well as "usual suspects," a graduate student, and a housewife. These type of people can hardly be labeled as "revolutionary radicals."

Why don't you give equal space to a negatively written article on the right wing? Perhaps you could title it, "Radicals have taken over Provo."

Although the New Activities Center will obviously be the center of much activity, it might become increasingly dull to refer to it by that name.

Consider the Spectrum, the Astrodome, the Salt Palace, Madison Square Garden, or the Pauley Pavilion. But the Activities Center?

Are we on the brink of putting ourselves in the category of a Special Activities Center?

With a completion date set for next fall, a little haste may be in order else we find our basketball team "coming to you live from the whatchamacallit."

Turning to the student body for suggestions, a recent opinion poll found an overwhelming 67 per cent answering with a resounding, "What Activities Center?" Twelve per cent agreed upon the Chris (Cosmo) Dwyer Memorial, nine per cent suggested the Kremlin Cosc. Colliseum, and the remaining six per cent wavered between Disneyland East and Gadsdton Gulch.

Finding the poll results somewhat dubious, let's mull over this modest proposal...

How about "The Cougarcade"?

It may seem a bit hard to swallow at first, but considering the implications we would be hard put to attach a more versatile label.

The possibilities are boundless! Cougarcade organ... Cougarcade events, Cougarcade Bands, the Mormon Cougarcade Choir! With all due respect to Richard P. Condie, this is going to be big, really big.

Duo eyes presidency

It was rumored yesterday that the so-called "Lone Ranger of the New Frontier," Stewart L. Udall, and retired U.S. flying daredevil, Curtis E. LeMay, have been selected as finalists in the search for a new BYU President, an unofficial BYU administration source disclosed.

Inspired by Lindbergh's solo flight to Paris, LeMay took up aviation at Ohio State University and became a general at the early age of 37. At his retirement at age 58 in 1965, he had been a four-star general 22 years, longer than anyone else holding that rank.

A few of his decorations include the Most Exalted Order of White Elephant (1st class), Moroccan Order of the Ouissam Alaouite Cherifien, and the Russian Order of the Patriotic War. He is a life trustee of the National Geographic Society.

At five-feet eleven inches, Udall towers four inches over his cigar-chomping rival. A member of the LDS Church, Udall served as Secretary of the Interior under Kennedy.

The first Arizonian to attain Cabinet status, Udall "took pot shots at such extraneous Washington statues as those of James Buchanan, Benjamin Rush and General John Rawlins."

Udall served six years as a federal legislator from Arizona before reaching national prominence.

Commenting on his possible successors, BYU President Ernest L. Wilkinson grinned, "Curtis, who?"

April Fools Day 1971

Construction will begin today on the new "Ironton Downs" racetrack, announced the Office of University Development. The racetrack is being built on the site of the BYU Industrial Park near Springville.

The BYU Rodeo Grounds will be the site for today's April 1st 14-race handicap. Future horse races will be held at Ironton Downs. Construction is expected to be completed by March 1972.

The racetrack is being built to help alleviate the sky-rocketing costs of education at BYU. Bills are currently pending before the Utah State Legislature to open the way for horse racing in Utah. The gambling clauses of the bills are expected to provoke heated controversy.

Violent objections to horse racing are expected on the part of many Utah Valley residents. "I can't understand this. What's wrong with horses? They brought the pioneers across the plains, didn't they?" exclaimed one University spokesman.

One Payson resident voiced pleasure over the announcement of the racetrack construction. "It will give me more to do than watch my grass grow," he said.

The Office of University Relations is now busy promoting the new racing facility. "University funds will not be used to finance construction," explained one official. "We have the backing of some high-powered Las Vegas financiers and bookies, including Howard Hughes."

University Relations personnel point out that Ironton Downs will bring many tourists to Provo and greatly bolster the local economy. They claim it will be the greatest thing to happen to Utah Valley since the invention of the hay bailer.

"Many new jobs will be created as a result of the new racing facility," said one question supporter. "The new openings on the BYU Security alone will more than justify the facility."

The number of Security officers will have to be increased to provide enough manpower to enforce University parking regulations at the new track. One Security official obfuscated that University faculty and staff may perhaps be given priority parking and that A-Zone parking regulations will be in effect at the Downs.

The gala opening of Ironton Downs will be marked by the first running of the $50,000 Deseret Sweepstakes handicap. "This is destined to become a BYU tradition," said I. Kamel Jockey, a daily-double expert.

It has not yet been determined whether or not BYU racetrack crowds will be permitted to give standing ovations to the horses.

Smith Fieldhouse secretly demolished

Wrecking crews began demolishing the Smith Fieldhouse late yesterday in order to begin construction on the new BYU law school, according to Dr. Samuel F. Brewster, Physical Plant director.

However, BYU faculty members and students think the Fieldhouse should be preserved because of its unique architecture and "priceless playing floor."

One student said, "The Fieldhouse should stand in memory of all the famous speakers it has housed."

But public opinion cannot save the 20-year-old building, already half destroyed.

Fieldhouse remnants, such as Cosie's basketball uniform, handballs, a ten-year-old registration card, thirteen dozen pair of sweat socks, gum scraped from beneath the bleachers, and writing on the wall will be placed in a time capsule to be buried in the foundation of the new law school.

Similar remnants, and more, will be placed in the University archives. Students wishing to purchase any passing paraphernalia should contact the archives April 4.

Friday's forum assembly will be held in the new Activities Center.

14 more months in jail

Hoffa loses parole appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamster President James R. Hoffa lost his second bid for parole from federal prison yesterday, meaning he faces at least another 14 months behind bars as well as a formal challenge this summer as head of the nation's largest union.

After a private, 75-minute hearing, the U.S. parole board denied pleas from Hoffa's lawyers and children for his release from the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, where he has served a little more than four years of a 13-year sentence for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The seven-member board said further consideration of a parole request would be deferred until June, 1972.

As usual, the board gave no reasons for its decision, nor did it say how its members voted.

But board chairman George J. Reed noted that Hoffa's application was reviewed yesterday for the first time since the Supreme Court upheld the union leader's fraud conviction last January, which extended his sentence from eight to 12 years. He previously had been serving only the eight-year term for jury tampering.

Hoffa, 58, could conceivably be elected to another five-year term as Teamster president when the two-million-member union holds its convention in Miami in July. The union bylaws do not prohibit election of a president who is imprisoned.

But Frank E. Fitzsimmons, the Teamster's general vice president who has been running the union in Hoffa's absence, has served notice he would actively seek the $100,000-a-year presidency if Hoffa were denied parole yesterday.

Bizarre marijuana charge ends in acquittal for actor

SALERNO, ITALY (UPI) — American actor William Berger, who gained local fame for his bad guy roles in Italy's "spaghetti Westerns," was arrested last August when police found a fraction of an ounce of marijuana at his rented seaside villa.

Tuesday evening, a Salerno court acquitted him of all charges. In the meantime he spent nearly nine months in a jail-insane asylum and his wife, actress Carol Lombardo, died while being held in another jail.

The Italian press said the whole thing was "absurd," "unbelievable" and the proceedings were something out of Kafka.

The trial ended on about the same note: the prosecutor charged Berger with turning his villa into a narcotics den, all because police had found one-thirtieth of an ounce of marijuana in a snuff box in one of the bedrooms. The judge found insufficient evidence and dismissed the case.

Five house guests arrested with Berger and his wife Aug. 6 were released shortly afterward. Mrs. Berger, who was recovering from cancer surgery and hepatitis, went to jail along with her husband.

In October she died after "exploratory surgery" at a Naples hospital. No autopsy was held.

Berger, who said neither he nor his wife ever used drugs and who had made it a point of asking house guests not to bring drugs to the villa, refused to attend his wife's funeral because authorities would not allow him to go unless he wore handcuffs.

As to the snuff box in which the drug was found, he told the court he had never seen it before. A woman and her child sleeping in the bedroom where the marijuana was found were never identified, and police said they didn't even bother to awaken the woman because since she was asleep, they believed her innocent of anything that might be going on.

McGraw and O'Neal to film here

"Love Story" has proven to be such a box-office success that Paramount has decided to use the BYU location for a similar film.

Author of the best-selling book and screenplay, Erich Segal, recently visited the campus and decided that "This is the place." Segal commented on the clean and wholesome atmosphere of BYU and said, "The setting and people are just what we are looking for. We've had phenomenal success with the exception of a few complaints about the dirty language and a scene involving pre-marital sex. We've decided this time to keep the same simple, yet moving story line with a 'cleaner' angle."

It was also disclosed by Paramount executives that in the film, Miss McGraw will reside in Shipp Hall of Heritage Halls while O'Neal will be assigned to a room at one of the new Desert Towers.

The plot has not been released as of press time and although hints have been given that the story involves a young co-ed who is anxious to get married and a returned missionary who is more than willing to comply. Title of the film has not yet been decided although the favored one is "To the Temple By the River."

Rehearsal for singers

Soprano, alto, tenor and bass singers are needed in the Oakland Temple Pageant Choir. The club, made up of former cast members of the temple pageant are looking for singers to join them for two future performances.

A rehearsal will be held today at 7 p.m. in the U.S. Auditorium for interested musicians. The choir is under the direction of Dr. Ralph Laycock, director of the Philharmonic Orchestra and the Wind Symphony on campus.

Performances are planned for a tri-state investigator's fireside on April 18, and a regional fireside for the Salt Lake area early in May.

Further information can be obtained from Ron Selim 375-0313.

BYU veterans comment on Calley

By SHIRLEY GARDNER
and PAUL KNUDSON

Lt. William L. Calley's murder conviction has invoked strong negative feelings from many BYU Vietnam war veterans.

"I feel quite strongly against it," Richard Dixon said. "They're setting this guy up as an example. So many people were getting killed that they had to stop it somewhere. They just used Calley to set a precedent."

"A lot of this same type of thing is happening all over," Dixon said. "Life over there doesn't seem as important over there when you're confronted with a row of guns as it does here. You have to be there to understand it, I guess."

Ray Ashby, who served in Vietnam from Oct. 1969 to July 1970, said, "When I first heard about the trial I couldn't understand how anyone that hasn't been over there could even be on the jury or help to try him. Being over there is an entirely different world than here. I question whether a person can entirely justify the actions of another man who has been in an entirely different environment. A military man goes through a lot more than it seems on the surface—a lot more anxiety, fears, influences, pressures. Under those conditions I think a man acts differently from the way he would if he were just here in the States fighting a war."

Larry Taylor, a graduate student in communications, talked with two platoon members who served under Captain Medina and saw the civilians at My Lai after they were dead. According to Taylor, the two soldiers thought the My Lai civilians were sympathizers with the Viet Cong. It was their opinion that Calley's concern was with his men. "The army's using him as a scapegoat," Taylor claimed they said.

"I think the army is responsible for letting someone like Calley be put in a situation like My Lai," said R.C. Roberg, a 1968 veteran. "It was brought up in the trial that he had homicidal tendencies. That should have been caught at the time of induction."

Roberg feels that the big conflict in the trial is the fact that soldiers are trained to kill. Who is to decide where the line is between murder and killing in the line of duty, he asked.

Roberg commented on the effect the trial would have on the Paris Peace Talks. "The communist countries will use this incident to destroy the U.S.

image," he said. "The American soldier will now be portrayed as belligerent, disregarding life."

"I think Calley's getting the short end of the stick," said Kirk Smith after serving a year in Vietnam. "No one will ever really know if what happened at My Lai was an order or not, but from my own experience, I would guess that the order probably came down the line. I can't see them laying the blame on one person."

Even more unthinkable to Smith was the fact that Calley had been convicted for premeditated murder. "I don't see how it could have been premeditated when it happened on the spot," he said.

Cat trackmen prevail over Texas schools

By LYNN CANNON

The BYU track team easily defeated Abilene Christian College and Texas Tech Tuesday afternoon in Abilene.

The Cougars rolled up 96 points to Abilene Christian's 55 and Texas Tech's 26.

Top performers for BYU were Ralph Mann, who won both the 120 yard high hurdles (13.9) and his specialty - the 440 intermediate hurdles (52.9). In the weights division, BYU's Louisiana threw a personal best (183-8) in winning the discus.

Louisiana's Yugoslav teammate, Zdravko Pecar was a close second in the discus with a personal best of 182-5 1/2.

Cougar high jumper, Dan Mendenhall, extended his winning streak to three by defeating his Finland teammate, Aaro Alarotu on fewer misses as both athletes cleared 6-8.

Triple jumper Lauro Diaz had his best performance of the year as he won both the long (23-1) and triple jumps (48-4). BYU distance runners Usia Sotutu, Richard Reid and David Hindley scored a clean sweep in the two-mile run. All three Cougar runners were timed in 9:28.9 as they broke the tape together.

The quality of individual performances was hindered by strong, gusty winds which reached 25-30 miles per hour according to Cougar coach Willard Hirschi.

"We are pleased with the team performance," said Hirschi. "We hope to have better weather conditions in Austin," added the Cougar mentor.

Sugar ruggers set to battle nationally ranked Air Force

By JIM LINDSEY

The national rugby ranking on the line today as the Sugar ruggers set to battle the nationally ranked Air Force Cougars in Colorado Springs. The Cougars, currently ranked seventh, have been pointing to this game since suffering only defeat last season at the hands of the Falcons, 19-8. Prior to this, the Cougars had been victorious in all four outings against the Falcons by scores of 17-14, 19-6 and 12-3.

On the same trip, prior to the Air Force, BYU's squad suffered costly injuries against the University of Alberta and the Barbadians, and were only able to start nine regulars against the Falcons.

After a rocky start as the Cougars capitalized on three Cougars miscues to go ahead on three penalty kicks by a fullback and kicking fullback, Denny Leuthauer, the Cougars found themselves in deeper trouble when the Air Force backs, Wally Josephs and Matusale, were injured in the game.

During the shift in the game, the Cat ruggers fought but were unable to match the Air Force in the scoring column. The bright moment in BYU's game was a 54-yard field goal by Fijian kicker Joe Vakalala.

In preparing for today's encounter, Segar has continually emphasized conditioning. "This Air Force squad really stresses conditioning, and in rugby football you can't effectively slow a team down, so we'll have to run with them and make them play our kind of game instead of visa versa."

Looking over the personnel situation, Segar will be starting his strongest team headed by experienced Church College of Hawaii transfers, Sais Paongo, Matt Brown, Mike Mahulka, and Norman Soakai. The aggressive forward pack, along with veterans Mike Loper, Mark Hansen, Gene Drake, Kevin Fowler and Captain Jim Lindsey. The other two forward spots will go to Dave Jones and Don Gubler, who distinguished themselves in last Saturday's win over rival Utah.

Together with Paongo, Mahulka and Soakai, the hard-running back line will be anchored by Bobby Wilson, Cal Johnson and speedster Brian Andelin. At fullback will be kicking specialist Steve Michaelis, BYU's leading scorer over the past two games.

When asked concerning the team's fitness, Segar remarked, "We're taking 24 players on this trip, and they're all fit and ready to play."

Today's showdown has all the ingredients necessary to become a very close, hard-fought contest. Air Force has several victories under its belt this season with a single loss to the powerful Bruins of UCLA. BYU, on the other hand, has a score to settle with the Falcons as well as needing every victory to break into the top five in the nation.

Saturday finds the Cats traveling to Ft. Collins, where they will be hosted by Colorado State.

Walk for Hunger will trace twenty mile route

Hundreds of Utah County students and youth will walk more than 20 miles through Provo and Orem on April 17 as part of the Utah Valley Walk for Development.

The Provo Walk will help fund two local projects, the Utah Valley Training Center and the Migrant Worker's Day Care Center. Also receiving funds from the march is a medical project in a remote Guatemalan town where only the most primitive health facilities exist. Sponsored by AYUDA, the health project has received support from many local medical professionals.

Each student planning to walk the 20 miles will seek sponsors—friends, relatives, and businessmen—who will pay him a specific amount for each mile walked.

The marchers will leave the old BYU football stadium and walk south through Provo on University Avenue. The group will turn west and march back from 400 South in Provo to 800 North in Orem.

At the half-way point, the students walk east to the power

The Walk for Development in Provo is part of a national mobilization of concerned young people called the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation. This organization is sponsoring a series of walks in major cities nationwide to stimulate Americans to become active in the war on hunger, both domestic and worldwide. The Walk is being co-sponsored by the ASBYU President's Office.

Student wins Arabic grant

Brent Stuart, a junior from Lafayette, Calif., has been awarded a fellowship to study Arabic in Cairo, Egypt this summer. He is the first BYU student to win such an award.

Stewart has spent a year studying Arabic under Dr. Merrill Van Wagoner. He decided to study the language "on a whim." In addition to his Arabic studies, Stewart is majoring in Spanish, and he also speaks French. The fellowship includes round-trip transportation, maintenance and an eight-week study period of Arabic at the American University in Cairo.

From Hollywood to BYU

Emmy winner joins BYU staff

By DAVID CARR

West member of the BYU picture production team won an Emmy for his in "The Immortals," an one of the Week is Grandstaff, a native of Angeles, joined the ent about six weeks ago. Paul president of the Picture Sound Editors' oup awarded him the Reel for his work on "He also holds a Golden ward for film editing. staff gave up a position as of the sound editing ent at Paramount to work He said he could not in his moral and sional standards and to work in Hollywood. otion picture industry is out," said Grandstaff. and that the output of try is "unbalanced" and ing sex and "destroying e there is one success y body jumps on the on," he said. He said that ally ridiculous" when he id such material. He said e are ways to "artificially portray" certain situations "without being too graphic."

Grandstaff laments the fact that the motion picture studio is so far from the campus. "I like the students," he said. He also said he would like his department to be "a little more professional."

W.O. (Judge) Whitaker, director of the motion picture department, said the reason the studio is so remote is to avoid noise. When Whitaker organized the department in 1952 it was located on the campus. Noise, notably from traffic and from the elson chimes, caused too many interruptions and a move was soon made.

Whitaker gave up a job with the Walt Disney Studios to come to BYU. Some of his drawings of Peter Pan and other Disney characters adorn a wall in the BYU studio. Many of the people who work at the studio came there at a substantial reduction in salary.

Whitaker established the studio at its present site north of the Provo-Orem cut-off. The studio, which is accessible from the Carterville Road, is partially surrounded by trees. The trees and a stream running through them are kept in as primitive a condition as possible so the crew can shoot without seeing civilization.

The studio includes two enormous sound stages. There is enough room to house several medium sized sets at one time.

The studio owns a 35mm camera and several 16mm cameras. Ted Van Horn, a cameraman, said there are no "hang-ups as to equipment." The studio recently produced "In This Holy Place" on 70mm film using a rented camera.

Jeane Stay, assistant director of the motion picture department, estimated that the studio produces 40 to 50 film strips and 20 motion pictures per year. A crew from the motion picture department shot a film strip on March 6 at the Provo First and Seventh Ward Chapel using Primary Children and teachers for talent.

The department did a Japanese retake of "Man's Search For Happiness" for Expo 70. This film, shot in Japan, was the first filming that the department has done outside the United States. The film, which was shown on campus March 17 as part of the 1971 Mormon Festival of Arts, has proven to be an excellent missionary tool for the Japanese missions.

Robert Stum, director of photography, is currently in charge of filming ancient ruins in Mexico, Guatemala and Peru for the coming film "Ancient America Speaks." He and his crew expect to return in April.

The BYU motion picture studio produces documentary and educational films as well as LDS religious films.

BYU at present has three courses concerned with the motion pictures. Communications 371 provides an introduction to the field. Communications 372 involves actual film production and Communications 373 covers the writing of film treatments and shooting scripts. All of these courses have prerequisites.

The BYU administration has shown some interest in better

exploiting the motion picture area academically. Dr. Raymond Irwin Goodman heads an advisory committee formed by the administration to investigate the possibilities in this area. The committee has been holding telephone conferences with persons in other parts of the country to find out what other schools are doing.

Driving Partners For Safer Travel

"Women driving at night often turn on the radio, sing, and at times talk aloud to themselves, while men hesitate to do likewise," says John P. Manley, executive vice president of Pottery Industries, Inc.

He said that although men do most of the highway driving, women can volunteer a turn at the wheel, or assist in night driving in the following ways:

Stopping—Suggest stops about every 100 miles, so he can rest his eyes, regain alertness and drive refreshed.

racers fans are expected to the BYU Rodeo Arena r the April Fool's Day at 14-race doubleheader. 's race marks the last time on Grounds will be used ng. Future races will be the new Ironton Downs h that is new under act at the BYU d Park.

he air will greet the early en the first of five races the post at 10:30 a.m. the morning session, a ouble will be offered on two races.

he conclusion of the fifth e race, scheduled to go t at approximately 12:30 ple time will be provided he racing program resumes e. During this period, the th picnic baskets take advantage of the Rodeo Arena's verdant lawn areas to spread out the fare. "Talltaling," the act of eating lunch from the rear of station wagons, also has grown in popularity. In addition, there will be a large number of refreshment stands to augment the Rodeo Arena's spacious dining facilities. Included are the Horse Trough, The Sterling Main and the Bridal and Saddle. These facilities are adequately capable of taking care of the multitude of hungry viewers.

The afternoon racing program will offer a daily-double on the first two races and Perfectas on the fourth, seventh and final races.

Highlight of the afternoon will be the renewal of the $50,000 Joe-Gum-Shoo Memorial. A race for three-year-old and other horses will be at one mile and one eighth. The race perpetuates the memory of the late Plymouth, new Hampshire resident, industrialist and sportsman.

Mr. Gum-Shoo brought the first horseracing event to New Hampshire residents when he challenged Farmer Smyth to a race to determine who would get grazing rights to the spacious Merrimack Reservoir Basin. Later this race was transformed into the New Hampshire Garment Industry, located primarily on the Merrimack River. Thus horseracing became a popular sport in the State along with the Garment Industry, which flourished until the middle 1930's.

While "Children's" Fields will be absent from the races because of a previous commitment to ride in the "Buggy Derby" at the Santa Anita Raceway in California. Fields is currently the leading jockey on the circuit.

John W. Booth recently checked in from Lincoln Downs, with five mounts including Wrong Way Sally, Flashy Susan, Run for the Run, Margy Betty and Ruby O'Rocks.

All-in-all, this year's racing program should prove to be exciting if they can get the horses off to a running start.

Clean Waste Water

A $2.5 million clean waste water facility is being designed for the General Motors Assembly Division, North Tarrytown, N.Y., for its plant on the Hudson river.

Plant manager John P. Kuyper said that "Construction will begin as soon as we are advised that the installation will comply with the waste water codes of the various governmental agencies having jurisdiction."

Brezhnev calls for 'saturation' of consumer goods

(OSCOV UPI) — The Communist Party has for the first time ordered production of consumer goods expanded to keep up of the rising standard of life of Soviet people.

"Saturation" of shops with vision sets, washing machines, k, eggs, butter and similar goods is the ultimate goal of the program, Party Leader and I. Brezhnev told the 24th All-Union Communist Party Congress today.

"Consumer goods production must go up at a higher rate than the cash incomes of the Soviet people," Brezhnev said. Emphasis on more and better consumer goods was the key domestic feature of Brezhnev's six-hour address to 6,000 delegates to the Congress at the Kremlin.

The Congress, the first since 1966, reconvened today and heard a report from Gennady Sizov, chairman of the Communist Party Central Administration Commission.

Sizov, watchdog of finances and efficiency in the party, said the Communist Party "functions precisely and harmoniously with great efficiency."

For the Soviet citizen, the economic spurs were good news. But for the nation's artists and writers there were stern comments.

For instance, the party made clear it will tolerate no "slender of Soviet reality" by writers and artists. By implication, it branded Nobel prize winning novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn as such an offender.

"If a writer slanders Soviet reality and helps our ideological adversaries in their fight against Socialism, he deserves only one thing—public scorn," Brezhnev said.

In an apparent reference to Solzhenitsyn, he said:

"There were some people who sought to reduce the diversity of present Soviet reality to problems that have irreversibly receded into the past as a result of the work done by the party to surmount the consequences of the personality cult."

In Kremlin jargon, "personality cult" means Stalinism. Solzhenitsyn's lauded novels have spotlighted Stalin's purges and concentration camps.

Limit on campaign costs proposed by Administration

(WASHINGTON UPI) — The Nixon administration proposed today that an overall limit be set on the amount of any political candidate for federal office could spend on advertising, but did not recommend a formula to fix the limit.

Deputy Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified before President Nixon recently made it clear that he favored a limit on expenditures and added "it must be comprehensive and it must not give an advantage to those in office over those seeking office."

Kleindienst told a Senate Communications subcommittee that spending limitations should apply to both broadcast and nonbroadcast media but that there should be one comprehensive limit, leaving it to the candidate how to allocate his advertising budget.

A bill sponsored by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., would limit the spending ceiling for a presidential, senatorial or congressional candidate of 21 cents per vote cast for that office in the last previous election. Of this, seven cents could be allocated to television.

But Kleindienst, on behalf of the administration, rejected a formula based on the number of voters in the previous election. He said that "would limit today's campaign to yesterday's performance."

"Further, the formula used for the 1972 election would not take into account all persons 18, 19 and 20 years old who were recently enfranchised by the 1970

Voting Rights Act amendments," he said.

Kleindienst also said different requirements of candidates in different parts of the country must be taken into account and that Congress must resolve to what extent expenditures of individuals and organizations not directly connected with the candidate should be included in the office seeker's allowance.
